Newman Club Meets On Sunday Morning

Major John Long, Physical Culture Expert, To Speak On Fitness

The second regular monthly meeting of the McGill Newman Club will be held on Sunday morning in Congress Hall, corner Alexander and Dorchester streets. A special low Mass commencing at 9.45, will proceed the meeting.

Major John Long, well known local sportsman and physical culture expert will be the guest speaker at the meeting on Sunday. Major Long is well known locally for his work in conditioning such organizations as the Montreal Maroons and the Montreal Football Club. The subject of his talk will be "How to keep fit" and besides being interesting to all college students, should also prove instructive.

Due to the resignation of Curtis Corcoran of Med. 4, there will be a vacancy on the executive of the Club and will necessitate an election at the meeting on Sunday. A report on the success of the last informal held by the Club will be presented and plans for the next one will be discussed at the meeting.

The executive of the Newman Club hope that all Catholic students at the University will take this announcement as an invitation and be present at the meeting on Sunday morning.

Rev. Charles Smith To Talk To Masonic Club Tuesday

The first meeting of the McGill University Masonic Club will be held Tuesday, November 8th at the Union Grill Room at 6 o'clock. A musical entertainment will be given, which will be followed by a short business meeting. The speaker for the evening will be the Rev. Charles G. Smith who will speak on "A Pilgrimage in the Dicken's Country."

This club was founded in 1923 for the purpose of uniting the Masons in the college and making their interest in the Masonry grow. The University Lodge, which is composed entirely of University graduates, is sponsor of the club. The Lodge meets in the Masonic Temple on the second Saturday of each month.

F. W. Field Will Be Guest Speaker At Commercial Luncheon

F. W. FIELD, British Trade Commissioner at Montreal will be the guest speaker at the first Commercial Society luncheon of the year, the executive of the society announces.

The luncheon will take place next Wednesday November 9 in the Union Grill Room and will commence at one o'clock. A special price of forty cents has been obtained this year, and the hope is expressed by the executive that all students in Commerce will turn out to make this, the first function of the year, a success.

Mr. Field who is noted for his work in the study of Canadian investment history will speak on the efforts made to promote British trade in Canada.

Spanish Society To Meet In Union Grill

Newly-Formed Club Will Hold First Meeting Next Monday

OUTSIDERS MAY JOIN

Former Resident Of Spain Will Deliver Illustrated Lecture

Mr. C. F. Denton, for many years a resident of North-Eastern Spain will address the first meeting of the Spanish Club which is to be held in the Grill Room of the Union on Monday next at 8.15 p. m.

The Club is not only composed of students in the Spanish classes at McGill but is open to outsiders who are interested in the Spanish language and Spanish history. A large number of outsiders have signified their intention of joining the club which offers excellent opportunities to practice conversational Spanish.

Illustrated Lecture

Mr. Denton, the guest speaker at Monday's function will give an illustrated lecture on Spain featuring his numerous trips into the remote recesses of the Pyrenees. As the speaker is an enthusiastic mountain climber and as he lived in this district for twelve years it is obvious that he is well fitted to deliver a lecture of this type.

All prospective members are urged to turn out to this function and to join the club, the fees for which are two dollars per year.

Montreal Orchestra To Feature Violinist

Special Reductions Again Granted To Students

Sunday afternoon's concert by the Montreal Orchestra at His Majesty's Theatre, will introduce one of its newly acquired violinists, Albert Chamberland, assistant concert master under Maurice Onderet. He will be heard together with the last mentioned and Jean Bolland, cellist, in the Handel Concerto Grosso, a number that has always been very popular with the Orchestra audiences.

The program for the concert is as follows: 1. Symphony No. 5 in E minor, Tchaikovsky; 2. Concerto Grosso in C, Handel, for two violins, violin, cello and orchestra, Maurice Onderet; Albert Chamberland, violins, Jean Bolland, violincello; 3. Jig Fugue, Bach-Holst; 4. Prelude, The Master singers of Nuremberg, Wagner.

Students are again able to obtain the special reductions that were granted them last year, which amounts to 25 cents for a seat in the first four rows of the orchestra stalls. The rate with which these tickets have been taken up by the students in the past indicates both their interest in the Orchestra, and the quality of the concerts.

Medicos To Meet

Papers Will Be Read On Ancient Medicine

Two papers of historical interest to doctors and medical students will be read at the first meeting of Osler Society, to be held next Tuesday evening, Nov. 8, in the Vice-Regal Suite of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel at 8 o'clock.

The first paper, which will be delivered by J. R. Hoyle, will be on "Magicians in Medicine," a subject that has always been fascinating to doctors. The other paper will be given by Robb McDonald, his subject being "Chinese Medicine," in which he will bring forth new, illuminating facts on the medicine of the world's oldest civilization.

Discuss Plans To Solve Problems Of Canadian Railways

Hasler And Tees Comment Upon Duff Report Political Economy Club

CONDITIONS OUTLINED

Development Of C. N. R. System Traced—Possible Solution Presented

An account of the railway situation in Canada and the Duff Report was given by W. H. Hasler and H. H. Tees at the first meeting of the Political Economy Club, held in the Arts Building Smoking Room last night. Professor Leacock, honorary president of the club, in his introductory remarks, welcomed the members and made mention of the positions to which former members of the club have risen.

Hasler presented the present situation and the problems of the Canadian railways, and Tees gave the Duff Commission's suggestions as to a possible solution. Hasler first gave a summary of the railways since 1900, tracing their development through the periods of economic expansion, extension of railways transcontinentally, depression, and the Great War.

Financial Standing Bad

In 1927, many of the expanding systems, including the Grand Trunk, were in a very poor financial position. In 1919 the Canadian National was incorporated, although it was not until 1923 that it reached its present form, with Sir Henry Thornton as president.

Hasler went on to show that the C.N.R. has been in a poor financial condition since its incorporation. Its debt at the end of last year was two and a half billions. They owned more lines than the C.P.R., but although the operating revenue was four hundred million dollars more, the surplus was one hundred and thirty million less.

Competition of Auto

As far as competition other than that of other railways is concerned, Hasler stated that as far as can be estimated, 78 per cent of the loss in traffic is due to people travelling in private automobiles, and only 1 per cent in buses. Since 1923, the increase in traffic in private cars has been 100 per cent, in buses 60 per cent, and in trucks, 200 per cent.

In summing up the problems, the following were included: the overdevelopment of railways at the turn of the century; the uncontrolled competition, the reactions of the depression, the competition of other means of transport, and the disabilities of the C.N.R.

In stating the possible solution to the problem, Tees divided his argument into three main sections. The first thing to be done, he said, is to replace the present board of 17 directors of the C.N.R. by three trustees, chosen by the Cabinet, the three to have all authority of administration of property and operation of the system.

Chairman's Power Great
The three trustees will choose a chairman, who is to have a virtual dictatorship; he cannot be over-ruled by the other members, and can only be dismissed by Parliament.

The second of Tees' divisions dealt with co-operation between the two systems. The two companies are to try to remove wasteful elements without hindering the service. Difficulties would be settled by an arbitrary tribunal.

R.V.C. Music Club Chooses Delegates

Susan Poole And Elizabeth Stafford To Be On Executive

The election of Susan Poole and Elizabeth Stafford, as representative of first year, and R.V.C. respectively, to the executive of the R.V.C. Music Club, took place at the meeting of the Club held yesterday afternoon. Plans for the future were announced by Naomi Jackson, president of the club, including a concert to be given in celebration of the Hadyn Centenary.

It was also stated that arrangements are being made to secure the services of a well-known quartet, as well as a young Welsh singer active in musical circles. The day's entertainment was opened by Marjorie Hadwin who played Schuman's "Allegro" prefacing her performance with a few introductory remarks concerning the nature and construction of the piece.

According to Miss Murphy, the guest artist, the first thing to listen to is the theme which, though constant to the family tradition, varies with the individual. She also demonstrated on the piano that the songs of the Hermit Thrush produced at once the most complicated as well as the loveliest of melodies.

Autos Race For Football Fans At Tomorrow's Game

A CONTEST between the red-and-white of McGill and the blue-and-white of Toronto Varsity of a nature never before witnessed in Molson Stadium will be seen tomorrow afternoon by the assembled crowds at the McGill Varsity football game.

The first motor car race ever to be held in the Stadium will take place at half-time at the game when Doug Irvine, third year Engineering at McGill, and Frank Murray, formerly of O. A. C., drive two miniature sports cars around five laps of the track.

Irvine will drive a red M. G. sports car with red and white streamers flying in the wind, while Murray will be at the wheel of a blue car for Toronto.

Canadian Graduates Eligible For Grants

Royal Society Fellowships Founded By Carnegie Corporation

TO AID RESEARCH

Ten Annual Awards Valued At $1,500 Will Be Made For 5 Years

Through the generosity of the Carnegie Corporation, ten Canadian students will be awarded annually Fellowships of $1,500 for a period of 5 years. These Fellowships are to be known as the Royal Society of Canadian Fellowships. They are designed to enable students to carry on research work, and save in exceptional circumstances, such research is to be carried on in a university outside Canada.

Students holding Fellowships must work at least nine months of the year only on the subject for which they have been granted their Fellowship. During this time they are not allowed to occupy any remunerative positions. Applicants must be graduates of a Canadian university, possessing, preferably, a Master's Degree, or having completed work equivalent to such a degree. The age limit for applicants has been set at 32 years.

For One or Two Years

Students awarded Fellowships are given 40% of the amount when they begin studies. They are granted an additional 50% upon presentation of a satisfactory midterm report, and the remainder, when they have successfully completed the term. Fellowships are granted for one year, but if the

The Executive invite all students interested in Biology to attend this and later meetings of the Society.

Queen's Meds. Fined For Secret Hazing

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 4. — As a result of participation in secret initiation ceremonies, 62 second year medical students were fined $2.00, and forced to post a bond of $3.00 for the rest of the term. As a further penalty, they are forbidden to hold any dances this year.

The initiation ceremonies took place on the night of Oct. 20. Medical freshmen, it is alleged, were forced to walk through molasses barefoot, then through grain, and then told to put their boots on. They were also shampooed with rotten tomatoes and bad eggs.

Spengler's Idea Of Declining West Is Scouted By Files

"Must Not Write Despondent Dirge Before We Have Corpse"

FIRST OF SERIES

Work Of Philosophic Historian Discussed at Tudor Hall

The ultimate fate of each culture is to decline into a petrified condition, according to the teaching of Oswald Spengler, great German philosophic historian who was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. H. G. Files, professor of English Literature at McGill University last night. The lecture was the first of a series to be given at Tudor Hall by Dr. Files and Prof. A. S. Noad, also of the English department on some living forces in modern literature.

Dr. Files did not accept entirely the fatalistic doctrine of the German thinker.

"It is just as well," he declared, "not to write a despondent dirge before we have a corpse on our hands."

Biography of Cultures

World history is the biography of great cultures. This is the main thesis of Spengler's famous work, The Decline of the West. He has attempted there to classify the apparently tangled web of historical events in a few sweeping generalizations.

"Spengler sees in history no promise of continuous betterment, no indefinite releasing of rich and richer vitality; but only the sombre inexorable rhythm of the real, striding on from catastrophe to catastrophe," Dr. Files said.

Spengler traces the history of eight cultures, Chinese, Babylonian, East Indian, Egyptian, Graeco-Roman, Arabian, Mexican and Western.

Each culture after a definite creative period in which highest level of creative effort is reached passes into a state of civilisation which Spengler considers to be arid, marking the definite winter of the culture. The Western culture which had its beginning in the nineteenth century has declined into a civilisation.

This reveals all the symptoms of a typical Spenglerian civilisation: the rise of the city, increasing power of

Life And Work Of Lao-Tze Portrayed

Second Lecture On Chinese Philosophy Given By Dr. Kiang

"Produce but possess not. Lead but dominate not. Act but claim not." These three sentences form the basis of Lao-Tze's philosophy, said Dr. Kiang, of the Department of Chinese studies, in his second address on Taoism at the meeting of the Hung Tao Society in the Royal Victoria College last night.

Before discussing this philosophy Dr. Kiang told something of Lao-Tze's life, which is clothed in mystery. First the dates of his birth and death are unknown, and secondly, when his biography was translated from Chinese, he was confused with two other men. Lao-Tze is sometimes thought to be an atheist and anarchist. Nevertheless, although he did not mention God in his works, he did acknowledge the existence of a force superior to man; and although he did not approve of the existing government, he did believe in the principle of government.

The chief difficulty in understanding Lao-Tze's philosophy is the fact that all he wrote was a book of five thousand words. The beauty of his work is, that although it is written in the simplest of language, its underlying meaning is most profound, and offers as many interpretations as there are readers.

Dr. Stephen Leacock Will Speak At Graduate Banquet

McGill graduates of 1926-1930 will hold a reunion this evening in the Windsor Hotel. The reunion will take the form of a banquet, and Dr. Stephen Leacock will be the guest of honor.

Graduates who wish to attend are asked to purchase their tickets from the Society, as the number of tickets to be sold at the door will be limited.

E.C.U. Study Group

The Bible Study Group of the E.C.U. will meet as usual in the Students' Committee Room in Divinity Hall at five p.m. on Monday, November 7. All students are welcome.

Reporters Pay Visit Tonight To Montreal Gazette

CUB reporters will have a chance to see the other end of newspaper production, as the Daily staff visits the office of the Montreal Gazette tonight. This, the first get-together of the season, will start off with a light supper in the Union Grill Room, where the staff will gather at 8 o'clock.

The guests will be Charlie Peters, an old Daily man, and now on the staff of the Gazette, and W. D. O'Hearn, of the Herald, who will address the staff. Following this, the reporters will be conducted around the Gazette plant, where they will see the printers at work, the presses in action, and the entire routine of a large newspaper.

German Club Hears Of Life At Munich

European University System Described By Henry Schafhausen Yesterday

NO EXAMINATIONS

Executive Announce Plans For Year's Activities At Meeting

Student life with its ups and downs was portrayed by Henry Schafhausen at the first meeting of the German Club yesterday afternoon, in Strathcona Hall. At the conclusion of the speech, refreshments were served, and new "Lieder" were sung from the pictures "Congress Dances" and "Zwei Herzen in Dreiviertel Takt."

The president, E. Carter, at the beginning of the meeting gave a short history of the club and announced the plans for the coming season, including a projected "Berabend."

Munich University Life
Schafhausen gave a short history of Munich and its famous University. The speaker then entered into the difficulties of registration. There are no attendance rules, and various devices are used to express approbation or dislike of a professor, such as stamping of feet, and so on. There are no semester examinations. At the end of semesters, or three years, a general examination is held for the student. The percentage of students who are passed is very small, but a student is allowed to try three times.

The meals are very cheap and the quality of the beer is excellent. Identification cards are carried by all students in order to gain reductions in prices, in barber-shops, trains, etc.

Fraternity life plays an important part in the university life, and although duelling is forbidden, it is carried on frequently. There is a common faculty that German students are overly partial to beer, but according to the speaker, more milk is drunk than anything else, tea and coffee being rather expensive.

High Physical Development
There is a great deal of sport, and development is very high in physical culture, though competitive games are few. Students go from one university to another, and an ardent political nationalism replaces "college spirit."

Every student has a political conviction, and there is bitter hostility between the various groups. All hold discussion at which arguments are very bitter and intensive. Nevertheless things did not come to so bad a pass as in Berlin, where the university had to be closed for a few days. There is political freedom as long as things do not become dangerous.

Schafhausen went on to describe the art galleries and museums of Munich. In the technical museum

Band's Last Parade At Game Tomorrow

Tomorrow's game will mark the final appearance of the McGill Band this fall. Some fifty-odd bandmen are expected to turn out, due to the activity displayed by bandmaster Potts in rounding up delinquents. This turn out should establish an all-time record for McGill bands.

Instead of marching in fours, the band will march in sixes, and will perform several unique marching tactics at half-time. This is the last appearance of the Band at rugby games, but it will immediately begin practice for the concert of the Musical Society, to be held in the beginning of December.

McGill Footballers Ready For Varsity In Tomorrow's Tilt

Only Garcelon And Gilbert Will Be Missing From Crucial Game

HAMMOND WILL PLAY

Final Scrimmage Held Against Intermediate Squad Yesterday

The Redmen are determined to wipe out the memories of the last game against Varsity. To that end Coach Shaughnessy yesterday put his cohorts through one of the most strenuous workouts this year. This took the form of a practice game against Coach McTeer's second team. The Intermediate showed no effects of their strenuous game against Ottawa and made the Seniors step in the hour's drill.

Coach Shaughnessy had the boys practicing several of the plays which he hopes will catch the Blueboys flat-footed tomorrow. The team went to work with a will and the plays were clicking like clock work. For the first time this year the coach can look forward to an almost intact team. Every man will be ready for action but Gilbert and Garcelon.

Al Krukowski's forward tossing was never better than last night and he was hitting the seconds' line with a vengeance. The line as a whole was showing the same charging spirit as that before injuries wrought such havoc. They were breaking up plays behind the Intermediate line before they had a chance to get started.

Hilliard's injured leg stood up well in the heavy going and he should be prepared to handle his share of the front line work. Craig was punting better than ever before and the wings were getting down to smother the seconds' halves before they could get away. Letourneau was going great guns and few plays went through his side of the line.

Carvel Hammond will be back on the half line with all his old elusiveness and speed and he can be counted on for many precious yards in returning Sinclair's punts. His knee stood up well in last week's game and he is ready to go.

The following is a probable line-up of the team: Flying wing, Don Young; halves, Craig, Riddell and Stevens; quarter, Krukowski; insides, Wilson and Sangster; middles, Letourneau and Watson; outsiders, Griffiths and Newton.

Physicist Gives Talk On Crystal Structure

The Physics Colloquium held its weekly meeting yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, the speaker being Dr. G. V. Helwig. His subject was: "Methods in Crystal Structure Analysis," which he treated in a manner different to previous lecturers. While they spoke about the easier parts of the experimentation, he pointed out the greater number of difficulties which are encountered.

The first of these is the fact that up to now there has been no regular method of arriving at the nature of crystal structures. Sir William Bragg has done a great deal of research on this subject; the method he uses of measuring the size of the crystal pattern by X-Rays, is the one generally employed. To find the internal structure, Dr. Helwig assumed a hypothetical arrangement of the atoms, which was made to agree with all the known laws, and then tried to prove the result by reflection experiments.

Man Masters 140 Languages

Philadelphia, Pa. — Dr. Tassilo Schultze of the University of Pennsylvania undoubtedly holds the world's record for the number of languages one person can read, write, speak and understand.

He has mastered 140 languages which is believed to be all the languages there are in the world. He speaks perfectly ten Germanic, eleven Roman, fourteen Slavonic, twelve East-Indo-Germanic, four West-Indo-Germanic, eleven Finnish-Ugric, fourteen Asiatic, fifteen Indian, fourteen Semitic, eighteen African, six South Sea Island and four American languages.

Moreover, he knows all the artificial languages, of which Esperanto is the best known. Says he: "My purpose in learning all these languages was to get at the root of the origin of the world's tongue. I believe every nation's language to be the most reliable gauge of its civilization."

Anti-Climax

THE vicious fiends of evil that tear and rend the spirit of man, the all-enveloping canopy of darkness that often blanks his soul, the blighting fear that grasps and twists his heart with icy fingers—dread and dire as they are, they are far surpassed in horror and despair by the nauseating throes of anti-climax.

A thing indeed to shun. The aspirations of man ever ask advancement—to pass from one experience to another that is richer yet, to have always an expansion of satisfaction, heap upon heap of added sensations, until a weight of glory marks the climax. Our desires reach on and upward, and to them retrogression deals a staggering blow. Perverse actuality decrees frustration to our desires, and sends an anti-climax to be our misery.

It is not that our moments of joy turn to bitterness. That would be bearable. But the joy vanishes with sickening clarity, and leaves in its stead the negative insipidity of disillusion. The champagne does not turn to vinegar, but to tasteless and tepid water. The shadow of regret—remembrance falls upon us, more vile in its effect than the tempestuous wings of an approaching demon.

In an ideal world our satisfying experiences would first come to us in moderation, gradually growing in intensity and power, until the acme of their development coincided with the surrender of earthly life. Far otherwise with us. The complete harvest is often emptied at our feet in an early and crowded hour, bequeathing sterile soil to times that are to come.

It would be good, in truth, if our existence could bounce itself down the chasm to eternity as soon as the climax had arrived. But hope plays the seducer, and we live. The pangs of joy and the pangs of pain are both unfelt; nothing remains but dullness, the inert boredom of vacuity.

The appetite cloyed by anti-climax has no grim enemy to be attacked, no devil to be cast out. It sits passive but impregnable, and only the resignation of acceptance, or the discovery of yet untasted sweets, can remove its bane. It drags intellect down to indifferent inefficiency, and hints of the blackness of the grave. By heavy heart and heavy thoughts may you know it. It comes like a thief in the night, and the bolts break at its approach.

Educational Intolerance

AMONG the various sorts of intolerance educational intolerance has a conspicuous place. Not only is it usually as bitter as any other kind of quarrel, but the fact that it is carried on by men who are presumed to be the leaders of thought in the country, by men in whose hands is left the task of educating the youth of the nation, makes its existence more difficult to comprehend.

When a professor in the Faculty of Arts, says at the beginning of a course, that he "hopes none of the members of the class are so misguided as to be taking Commerce," there must be something wrong somewhere. It is true that the value of an academic commercial training is sometimes under fire from educational authorities, but it is surely not as useless as this learned gentleman would have had us believe.

The progress of the world may not be solely in the hands of the scientists, but their's is an essential task. Is there any excuse, then, for a contemptuous reference, in a lecture, to "the scientists, with their little measurements?"

The members of the scientific side of the Faculty, seem to have a broader outlook than many of their colleagues in Arts, in that they encourage the study of Classical subjects among their students.

Surely it is about time that people, especially intelligent people, began to realize that, just as it takes all kinds of people to make a world, so it takes all kinds of work to keep it going. One's man work in this respect is no less important than his neighbor's.

THE DUMP

Subsequent to the publication of a short story entitled "Keyed Minor" which appeared in these columns, we received the following contribution. It is alleged to be a parody of the above-mentioned work.

The four Aldermen, one cragged, three rotundous, were inspecting the dump with quivering nostrils. In mincing marionette fashion they were. And the sun could not glisten their black broadcloth for it was materially manufactured. Of the great municipal assembly they were and quivered with their nostrils: "It is ugly. It disturbs my digestion so that I cannot enjoy my food."

But the glistening man knew otherwise and approached them in pure nakedness. "You cannot see," he said, "for the sun is barred by your black broadcloth. Loosen those cloths which saddle your vision." But the Aldermen thought the man was obscene and neglected him for their inspection.

When they were finished and gone the glistening man prayed to the dump in ecstatic apostrophe. "O wasteland of inspiration, enter into me with your exudence! I die of bleeding inner sores which scourge the world. Think not of the Aldermen who came and minced, but of your vassal, your villain who is serfed to you. Think not of their de-based negligence but of my pure worship. O fat round cans, and embalming cabbage-stalks! O mustered porridge pots and hoary boots and strips of gleaming, gemmed tinsware! I, and I alone can see you. All others are blinded in the great Assembly of black broadcloth. Let that fervant scarlet of the squashed tomato burn my breast to sympathy! Let me perspire with your ooze so that my nervous seeking fingers may run over my skin in slippery ease! Crust my joints with sweet rust so that I may not move but exist in aesthetic paralysis! Tear my bare soles with bottleglass that I may bleed a death of saints!"

He ceased and glistened in the waning light. A sudden glare of darkness hurried upon him in his rapture, and he raised his eyes to stare with ever growing fearfulness. Smitten through, the dump revealed a chasm gigantic Ascobartian, shot with purple flares. The flares extended their long knives and slit the heavens in a gleeful game Broadcloth burning, burning, burning to infinity. And in the heavens there appeared a vision so terrific and so true, that as the glistening man watched he felt his white nakedness turning to soot.

He turned and ran, devil chased by awe, rattled to delirium. He stopped only to scribble obscenities on a whitewashed wall which offered its tempting faces for his kisses. "Kiss the wall, kiss the wall!" he cried and scribbled; "At last the dump has spoken. O gracious dump of sacrilege!" Then he fled again till balked by a mass of heaving blue.

"Not so fast there, young man. Where yer clothes?"

"Turned to soot, turned to soot. Stop me not. My mission has but started."

"Wot mission? Where yer clothes?"

"Stop me not. I have seen the heavens split in a gleeful game and the broadcloth burning."

"Wot broadcloth? Where yer clothes?"

"Torture me not with minlon hinderances. I have seen."

"Where yer clothes? Come along with me."

Whispered harpies hooted at the sooted man as he entered the courtroom. Whispered harpies, dized girls, oily priests, perfumed barbers and drooling, dribbling Ancients spat at him and jeered.

"Where yer clothes? Where yer clothes?"

The four Aldermen, one cragged, three rotundous, dressed in legality took their stance inquisitorial. "Ah," said the cragged one, "this is the man who approached us in pure nakedness at the dump to rail that we could not see. But then he was white and now he is covered with soot."

"My soot has come through my vision. You are black and cannot see. I am black and have seen. O dump! O dump!"

"Where yer clothes? Where yer clothes?"

"We sentence you to ten years in the dump carrying cabbage stalks and tinsware."

But the sooted man heard them not. He had sunk to the floor with a squash and littered the real marble. From his mouth there ran a stream of green slime to girdle the feet of the marionettes.

"Ugh! It is ugly!" they said. "It disturbs my digestion so that I cannot enjoy my food. Come let us buy some more broadcloth since this is so defiled."

But some of them didn't want any more broadcloth.

THE THEATRES PRESENT

His Majesty's

Canadian theatre-goers may rest assured that they will be seeing in "Rookery Nook" at His Majesty's next week, an English presentation that has scored signal success before being brought to the Dominion. This comedy, by Ben Travers, who is, in the opinion of some the equal of P. G. Wodehouse, played some 400 performances before English audiences.

Mr. Minster, and his supporting cast of farceurs, headed by William Daunt and Madeline Gibson, will commence their engagement here on Monday evening, November 7, and will stay for one week only.

Palace Theatre

This theatre brings a picture of unusual interest in "THE BIG BROADCAST" at the Palace next week. It features such bright names in Radioland as Bing Crosby, Kate Smith, the Boswell Sisters, Cab Calloway, Burns and Allen, the Street Singer and Cab Calloway and his Orchestra.

This picture, however, is not merely one of radio stars alone. Stuart Erwin and Lella Hyams are two of the central characters in the story. The story is of an irresponsible radio favourite, in the person of Bing Crosby and his rival in love, Stuart Erwin. The climax to the story provides an opportunity for a magnificent display of radio talent. Laurel and Hardy, Mickey Mouse, news and other shorts, complete the program.

Capitol Theatre

with Constance Cummings and the second feature is "That's My Boy," with Richard Cromwell, Dorothy Jordan and Mae Marsh.

Washington Merry-Go-Round is a sensational story of love and politics. Tracy, as the young and enthusiastic congressman, plays one of the most vigorous and most human roles of his career. He goes to Washington burning with plans of what he is going to do with gang politics, but meets Constance Cummings on the train to Washington. She tries to tame him, and smooth his way in Washington circles, but his maiden speech leads to disgrace and dismissal.

Loew's Theatre

Loew's features this week the radio prize story, "The Phantom of Crestwood," with Ricardo Cortez in the leading role. This picture presents an absorbing drama of a girl who specializes in separating tired and affluent business men from their morals and their excess capital. There is precipitated into the story unusual situations, full of compelling interest.

Huber the Magician heads the vaudeville program. He is the successor to Houdini, and proves that the body moves faster than the eye. In his trunk he allows himself to be trussed and placed in a straight-jacket. The trunk is then bolted and tied with a thick rope, making escape practically impossible. Inside of a few minutes he is out of the trunk and straightjacket, none the worse for his experience.

Cinema de Paris

"La Fille de l'espionne" a drama of great artistic quality, will be presented at the Cinema de Paris starting Saturday. This tale is one of mystery. A state secret is stolen. Who did it? A man is assassinated. Who is the culprit? Alexandre plays in the role of Prevail the detective, who succeeds in unraveling the national puzzle.

The scene of the crime is an old chateau, where many dramatic situations arrive. Alexandre is assisted by Alice Field and Gaston Duprais. The program presents news of the week, and a short comedy.

Imperial Theatre

"Ma Femme, Homme d'affaires" to be played at the Imperial next week, is an amusing film with fine satire. Numerous episodes are ingeniously contrived, which tend to provoke continual laughter from the audience. Ronde-Deville carries off the honors of the comedy.

He receives able support from Robert-Arnoux, Alfred Pasquall and the beautiful Emmy Gilm. The program also includes News of the Week, a cartoon comedy and short comedy.

"Bootleg" Tickets

The smoothness of the American college "boy" in little matters of raising money is proverbial. But none of them have anything on certain campus characters who have worked out the latest in smooth schemes for realizing cash profits on football tickets.

In brief, the system is this: to collect, by payment of a nominal sum, athletic book stubs from students who do not intend to go to the various games. These are all signed legitimately by the original holders, and then sent in for grandstand reservations by the dealer. The latter receives a good sized bundle of reserved seats which he pro-

CORRESPONDENCE

THE EDITOR,
The McGill Daily,
Sherbrooke Street West.
Dear Sir:

If the reporter who referred somewhat sarcastically to the white tie worn by the butler in a recent Workshop Play has not found it convenient or possible to note that butlers do wear white ties, those responsible for the costume worn will be glad to arrange for the reporter to meet any one of several butlers who invariably wear white ties while performing their duties at a formal dinner.

May I also refer the erring reporter to "Standard Etiquette," by Anna Steese Richardson, which may be found in the library. On page 314 he will find this statement: "In the evening a butler wears a full dress suit, with a white lawn tie and a black waistcoat."

Hoping this will be brought to the notice of the reporter who made the mistake.

Yours truly,
KAY MACKENZIE.

Re: Formal Wear

To the Editor
McGill Daily.
Dear Sir:

I should esteem it a great pleasure if you would allow me to take advantage of your correspondence column to express what must be the unpublished opinion of many of my colleagues.

I was inordinately gratified to observe in your recent editorial a fine statement of the case against the pernicious social habit, so long fostered by the system of fat stock shows and overeating that is known as "coming out" by the otherwise sane young women of this civilization—the habit of dressing the outer man, or woman, in garb of astounding hue and doubtful moral stability in the erroneous belief that thereby the inner being can better enjoy the pleasures of the vining, both gastronomical and intellectual.

I wish to give my unqualified endorsement to your championing of the cause which might be described as "mens sala in corpore salo;" for among those who are definitely somebody, no less than those who will never be anybody, minds, despite their environment are usually salae, and bodies frequently sala. Let us be frank about it, and go filthy, sweating and disheveled to our pleasure, as befits our mental, if not physical state.

Yours,
GOLDLOCKS.

Varsity Strong For Important Game With Red Rugbyists

Jack Sinclair, Injured Captain, Returns To Toronto Squad

BLUEBOYS CONFIDENT

SPECIAL To The McGill Daily:—Varsity stock went up to a high mark at the conclusion of today's practice when it was announced that Jack Sinclair will definitely be in the line-up against McGill on Saturday afternoon and now the only absentee is Hal Richardson who will not be in uniform again this season.

The captain of the Blues worked out on the track for ten days previous to the second Western game and all this week he has taken part in the regular drills and has been kicking and passing with his old-time form. The only other men who have been suffering from injuries, Dewar and Elson, will take their regular positions on the line, but Harold Arnup will be given as much rest as possible. He has carried the burden of the back field duties since Jack Sinclair left and the rest will be a well earned one.

Line Strong
A great deal of time has been spent this week on line blocking and charging. Varsity's weakness against Western in London last Saturday. The line is now as strong as at any other time this year. Tonight's drill lasted until well after dark and included a wide variety of plays which indicates that the Blues may open up more against the Redmen.

Stevens and Hobbs will not pick their starting team until a few minutes before game time, but a good guess would be: Flying Wing, Ferguson, Halves, Jack Sinclair, Wood, Copp; Quarter, Miller; Snap, Hees; Insides, Peacock, Rogers; Middles, Laing, Dewar; Outsides, Gibson, Henderson; Subs, Arnup, Jim Sinclair, Fenner, Elson, McGuigge, Cutler, Fitzpatrick, Boothe, and Rogers.

Intercollegiate Soccer

THE following men are to report at the C.N.R. Bonaventure Station at 3.45 this afternoon. Each man must bring his own equipment: Ross, Reece, Harkness, Minnion, Owen, Flood, Janikun, Crabtree, Hemens, Nolan, Cooper, Innes, Carter.

Red Soccermen In Week-End Games

First Team Meets R.M.C. In Kingston Tomorrow

SECONDS PLAY HERE

TOMORROW the Red soccer team will engage in its last intercollegiate game of the year, when it stacks up against the Cadets from R. M. C. Coach Hay Finlay, although optimistic, expects a hard fight for his team, particularly since the champion Varsity outfit was able to score only two goals against the strong defence of the Limestone City squad.

That the R. M. C. has improved beyond all expectation may be gathered from the fact that the same Blue team amassed a total of eight goals last year. The Redmen, incidentally, were victorious last season by 11-1, but can hope for no such score this year. Reports emanating from Kingston point to tremendous improvement of the R. M. C. fullbacks and goalie, who will, no doubt, cause the Red forwards plenty of worry.

Practised Yesterday
Yesterday afternoon the Redmen held their last practice prior to the game. Although a practice game was to have been played, sufficient men for two teams were not available. The team went through a brisk drill, and is prepared to leave for Kingston this afternoon.

While the first team will be occupied subduing the Cadets, the second stringers are scheduled to meet the pick of the High School League in the annual exhibition between the two teams. The game will be played tomorrow afternoon at 12.15 on the Upper Field, and should produce a hard battle, as the High Schools usually send up a snappy lot of youngsters, who are on their toes all the time. Captain Stuart will have to exhort his teammates to give of their best, in order to take this game. This is the last exhibition game of the season for the Redmen.

Arts Undergrads To Carry New Banner

The success of the rooters' parade held prior to the McGill-Queens game last week, has inspired the Arts' Undergraduates Society to lead another tomorrow afternoon before the game with Toronto. The Executive of the Society state that the new banner, which was used at the Smoker last week, will be used. The parade will start at the Union at 1.55.

The banner, which is twenty-odd feet long, will be carried at the head of the parade by standard-bearers, and will be put up over the rooters' section during the game. The executive ask that the festive spirit of the rooters be restrained in regard to the banner, as it is not only a fine specimen, but is also rather expensive.

McGill Rugbyists Guests Of Capitol Theatre Tonight

Will See Filming Of American Football Picture

ON the eve of one of the most important games of the season the Red Football squad will attend the Capitol Theatre tonight as guests of the theatre. The picture, "That's My Boy" is based on a story written by Francois Wallace one of the foremost football writers of the United States.

This football story is one of the most authentic ever written and is directed by "Dutch" Hendrien, famous American coach. The football sequences of the picture are made by the University of Southern California and St. Mary's College teams. In accepting the invitation to attend the screening of this picture, Coach Shaughnessy stated that he believed it would be beneficial to his men in their critical game tomorrow in giving them some relaxation from the strenuous training of the past week, and at the same time heighten their enthusiasm to go out and win.

First Squad Loses Close Game To Y.M.H.A.; Seconds Play Well

TEAMS FIGHT HARD

THE McGill senior water polo team proved conclusively last night at the Knights of Columbus pool, that it is not the doom of the major polo circuit of the city. They held the highly-touted Y.M.H.A. natators, class of the league, to the amazingly low score of 6-4, and this despite the injury to Bob Shaw, crack defenceman of the Redmen. Mark Stein played a sensational game, scoring even one of his team's points. Charlie Wayland, in the McGill nets, also proved a source of worry to the north-end squad.

Outstanding on the "Y" outfit were Kushner, who tallied three times, and Tucker, Sommer and Ofshitzer, each of whom netted the sphere once. The extent of McGill's improvement since the earlier part of the season may be noted from the fact that Columbus who defeated the Reds 11-2, in one of their first tussles, were subsequently trounced by Y.M.H.A., 16-2.

Juniors Win
The Junior tilt proved more encouraging to McGill aspirations. They trimmed the Montreal Swimming Club Juniors in a loosely-played, but exciting game. The score was 4-1. At no time were the seconds in any great danger of losing. Worral played consistently well, denting the opposing twine twice. Silverstone and MacIure each scored one goal. Alfie Mander, swimming star of the M.S.C. team, tallied the lone goal for his side.

Soccer Notice

FOR the game against the High Schools tomorrow afternoon, the following men are requested to be at the Field House by 12.00 noon: Swift, Andrews, Archer, Clacey, Kelloway, Gamble, Lynn, Smart, Cooper, Doublet, LeGron, Darby, Hullin, Burt, Re'd, Luxton, Poch. The game will start at 12.15 sharp.

Engineers Defeat Aggies By 2-1 Score

Losers Takes Cellar Position In Interfaculty Rugby UNINTERESTING GAME

THE lowly plumbers yesterday pushed the Aggie aggregation into the cellar position in the Interfaculty rugby race by a 2-1 score. The game was a listless affair with the superior kicking of Ogilvy and the speed of Mace proving a little too much for the Macmen.

The hard line-plunging of MacDonald and Finlay placed the Aggies in a position to kick their only point. However the score was soon tied up with a rouge by Ogilvy. The deciding counter was the result of a fumbled ball which was kicked half way up the field and over the MacDonald line.

The teams:
Engineering (2): Christmas, Patterson, Malouf, Julenko, Ogilvy, Lomis, Mace, Parent, Patton, Miller, Rose, Kimpton.

Macdonald (1): Smythe, Macdonald, Finlay, Finlayson, Williams, Jack, Grill, Taylor, Farnel, Thatcher, Clapp, O'Brien, Sniler.

English Rugby Team Play Toronto Fifteen

Meet In Second Game of Series Tomorrow

A HAPPY reunion was staged on Wednesday night when the Women's Badminton Club reassembled in Convocation Hall. The large attendance of thirty players shows how increasingly popular the Club's tea tournaments have become. Of last year's veterans Alexa Newton, C. Wickett, Annette Eliasoph, and Marjorie Ellis, though playing with early-season form, demonstrated clearly that each will be a potential threat to any aspiring titleholder. Marjorie Ellis's freshette cousin, who is also the daughter of Mr. Dean, seems to have the family badminton blood coursing through her veins. One of the best teams in the Club has been rent asunder by the non-return to college of M. Horner, who, with Catherine Wickett, made a well-nigh unbeatable combination.

W. CHISOLM, whose name at McGill is synonymous with tennis, is making a determined bid to retain her single and double championship of the courts. She is to meet Helen Boyd, her strongest threat for the title, in the semi-finals. Last year Helen extended the champion to a strenuous three-set match before admitting herself defeated. This year will probably be a repetition, with Winnie emerging victor again.

FOLLOWING out their excellent practice of encouraging group games of any sort, the M. W. S. A. A. have donated two cups to the basketball league of the Parks and Play-ground Association. With a birthday

THE English Rugby team will play their second game against Toronto University tomorrow, on the Lower Campus, when the fifteen which beat Varsity on their own ground will have an opportunity of meeting them at home. This game will be the last match of the Inter-Collegiate series which McGill have won for the past two years, and after the practice held yesterday afternoon the captain of the side, Dudley Butterfield, is confident that the honours will again go to McGill.

The game is scheduled to begin at 12.45 p.m. and should provide some first rate football, if the form shown by the team at Toronto is any criterion. The practice showed that the men are still in excellent condition for a fine finish to the season, and the substitutes who took part in the last match will be all the better for their experience.

of only one year to their credit, this league has already two sections of four teams each. To aid these comparative beginners still more, Miss Slack will have her Reds and Whites engage in an exhibition game to demonstrate the finer points of basketball. The scene is laid for the Montreal High gym tonight.

McGILL's colors were brought to the fore when Sheila Ritchie captured the diving events in a local swimming meet. With this added stimulus, all would-be Helen Madisons and Georgea Colemans are churning up the water during practice hours every day in the week.

Controversy Work
Spengler's work, Dr. Files said, has provoked wide controversy and has exerted still wider influence both on art and the study of history. But the lecturer believes that there is no absolute necessity to accept in toto the

C.C.N.Y. Publication Suspended By Dean

New York, N. Y. — Publication of "The Ticker," student paper of the City College of Business in New York City, has been suspended indefinitely by Dean Justin H. Moore. The suspension is the outgrowth of a controversy waged between the administrative body of the school and "The Ticker" staff. Dean Moore wrote a note to Bernard Zobler stating that all copy must be submitted to the faculty censorship. No reply was received from this communication, and the Dean felt it incumbent upon him to suspend publication of the paper.

Following the receipt of the suspension order Zobler, together with Seymour Grudin, business manager, penned a note to the Dean informing him that they could not accept the proposed conditions and still remain consistent with the ideals of free thought and student freedom which they had striven to maintain. It has not been announced yet as to what further action the staff will take, but it was believed probable that the student board will unanimously back up their representatives in an attempt to achieve reinstatement without compromise.

Dean P. Carrington Lectures At S.C.A.

Dean Philip Carrington of the University of Bishop's College will be the preacher at the weekly S.C.A. service being held in connection with the Special Graduate Conference of the S.C.M. meeting this week-end in Strathcona Hall. The service is to take place at 11.30 a.m. as usual and will be held in the Divinity Hall Chapel.

Dean Carrington, a graduate of Cambridge, has spoken in Montreal on several occasions notably at the Y.M.C.A. Forum and at the St. James Literary Society's recent meeting. All students are cordially invited to attend this service the singing at which will be done by a special student choir.

English Frown On College Life

Liberals may come and liberals may go, but British conservatism goes on forever!

This, at least, may be inferred from a statement that "people in England would be very shocked if they saw college men and women living in the same house, as they do here at the International House," made by Prof. J. B. S. Haldane, visiting Hitchcock Foundation lecturer from the University of Cambridge.

Commenting further, in an interview to the Californian, on his first impressions of college life on the campus as compared with that at Cambridge, Professor Haldane stated that rules of conduct at the University seemed to him to be less numerous and more lenient than those of the English college.

"We have fewer exams than you do," he went on to say, "but when ours come they last for days and days." Instead of a theoretical honor system, there is a proctor system effected at Cambridge so that the students take their examinations with a person in charge sitting at a high desk in front of the room.

Professor Haldane, who last night delivered the first of a series of public lectures on genetics, enzymes and biochemistry at the University is on his first visit to the United States as well as to Berkeley, where he will remain throughout next month.

Vocabulary Needed For High Standing

Boulder, Col. — A larger vocabulary tends to produce a higher grade for the student, statistics compiled recently by the department of engineering English reveal.

An analysis of one hundred freshman theme folders has been made and results published under the title, "A Study in Freshman Vocabulary," by Frank A. Grismer, instructor in engineering English.

Composite vocabulary of stem words used on paper for this test was 5,448. Statistics on relations of high grades to vocabulary show those earning 95 per cent used from 403 to 659 words; those with 90 per cent, 322 to 619; and those with 70 per cent, 239 to 447. Average number of words used by those with 40 per cent was 313.

It was learned that those with an average of 90 used an average of 659 words; 70, 297, and 39, 238.

Quoting from the introduction: "The safest generalization one can draw is something like this: A large vocabulary tends to produce a higher grade for the student, and unless the student be unusually weak in the fundamentals of English, a large vocabulary is likely to be his greatest asset."
